ATHLETIC CLUB
IN FASHIONABLE
SECTION BOMBED

Little Damage Resulted
From Blast on Chicago
Gold Coast

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP)—In a year of nearly 100 bombings, last night's dynamite attack upon the Lake Shore Athletic Club was the first to be made against a fashionable and exclusive group of Chicagoans.

The bomb was tossed through a window of the $6,000,000 clubhouse, tearing a hole in the wall of the natatorium. The club is at 850 Lake Shore Drive, in the heart of the gold coast, and the force of the explosion was felt in nearby homes and hotels. Several members in the locker room and men and women in the lounge were staggered by the blast.

Frank J. Loesch, 76-year-old Assistant State's Attorney and member of President Hoover's Crime Commission, was aroused from sleep in his Drake Hotel apartment, and joined in the investigation.

"The persons who did this bombing," he said, "advanced to the very door of the civic leaders of Chicago. The bombing must be solved."

Damage Not Great.

The actual damage was estimated at "a few hundred dollars" and was confined to the natatorium.

Police were investigating two theories: one that the bombing may have been done by terrorists employed by garage racketeers who in turn were disgruntled over the fact that many members of the club used an adjoining vacant lot to park their cars. The other theory was that rival cab drivers, vying for the privilege of waiting at the club entrance for fares, had resorted to violence to show their dissatisfaction with the present arrangement, which gives the club business to a single company.

The bombers, in an automobile, were seen as they tossed the bomb, with sputtering fuse, through the window. The witness, a cab driver, pursued them but was outdistanced.

Apartment Bombed.

A powerful dynamite bomb was exploded early today in an apartment building in the exclusive south shore residential district. It was placed in front of the door to the apartment of C. H. McCarthy at 7119 South Shore Drive. McCarthy, an official of Stein, Alstrin & Company, New York and Chicago brokerage concern, told police he knew of no motive for the bombing. The explosion shattered the door to his apartment, smashed much of his furniture, and caused considerable damage to the building.

Total damage was estimated at $2,500.

McCarthy, his son, Austin, who was once captain of the University of Chicago football team and now is employed by a LaSalle Street firm, and Miss Hilda Johnson, a maid, were thrown from their beds by the explosion.

Confectioner, 39,
Kills Girl, 16, Self

Detroit, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Passion that would not be denied even in death drove Martin J. Fisher, 39, confectioner, to kill 16-year-old Florence Warner and himself, police decided today.

A farewell note, written in Polish, was found in Martin's pocket after his body and that of the girl whose winsome beauty had captivated him while employed in his store were discovered yesterday in an automobile parked near Mt. Clemens. There were bullet holes in their heads.

Police said Miss Warner had been attacked, either before or after her death.

Fisher's note confessed he killed the girl because she spurned his love, and bequeathed his business and the automobile to her father.

"Sooner die than go to prison. Love my Florence so I had to take her along," Fisher wrote.

Desperate Effort to Find Lost Explorers

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 2.—(UP)—In a desperate attempt to locate Col. C. D. H. McAlpine and his party of seven explorers before winter closes down, Pilots Roy Brown, William Spencer and G. S. Blanchette were patrolling a 200 mile strip of territory between Baker Lake and Bathurst, Alberta, today in belief the two McAlpine planes had been forced down in that vicinity.

They were flying over frozen lakes and impenetrable forests with a pontoon-equipped plane, which is an extremely hazardous undertaking as a forced landing would mean disaster.

Blanchette reported to Dominion explorers headquarters here that he had traced the McAlpine party as far as Baker Lake and was confident it had made a forced landing somewhere between that point and Bathurst, the next scheduled stop.

GAME WARDEN DEFENDANT IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES BROUGHT BY WHITESIDE COUNTY MAN

Fred Kersten Sued By John H. Dawson Of Deer Grove

Action to collect damages against Fred Kersten of near Ashton allegedly received while he was serving as state fish and game warden on March 15, 1928, was started in the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon by John H. Dawson, a farmer residing near Deer Grove in Whiteside county, who claims that the warden shot him on that date, while handling loaded shot guns belonging to the plaintiff, his brother Paul and Gerald Keefe, Dawson is represented by Attorney H. A. Brooks while the former game warden is represented by County Judge William L. Leech and Attorney Robert Bracken.

The plaintiff, John H. Dawson, was the first to testify before the jury yesterday afternoon and related that he and others had leased ground in Hamilton township, Lee county, in March 1928 for hunting purposes. On cross examination Dawson stated that the lessors did not intend to hunt ducks but any other game that was in season at that time of the year.

John Dawson, his brother Paul, and Gerald Keefe, who were together at the time of the accident, testified that the latter had a queer bird in his possession with a hooked bill. The bird was of a species they had never seen before, and since the three men testified, the Dawson brothers testified that the bird was not web-footed, while Keefe, who told the jury that he shot the bird, testified that it was web-footed. The three witnesses were positive, according to their testimony that Warden Kersten was handling the guns, when the automatic shot gun owned by John Dawson exploded, the charge striking him in the foot. Keefe, in his testimony, told the jury that the warden and Henry Year, at that time a deputy sheriff from Ashton, carried "pioneers" shot guns, but that he saw a revolver that was a real gun. Many of the important facts referred to by the Dawson brothers, were forgotten by Keefe when he was subjected to cross examination by Attorney Bracken.

The three men testified that they went to the leased ground to inspect it, planning to take others into their hunting club. The Dawson brothers testified that all three guns, those carried by themselves and Keefe were loaded when the officers halted them while Keefe in his story of the accident, testified that his gun was not loaded. When the three had completed their testimony late yesterday afternoon, Judge Edwards adjourned court until 9:30 this morning.

MOTHER'S DEATH

Gave Evidence Against
Mother's Estranged
Husband Today

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 2.—(UP)—From the account of a five-year-old child, police today pieced together events in the marital difficulties of H. A. Mendenhall, son of a former shooting of his fourth wife Anna, when she threatened to file bigamy charges against him.

Mrs. Mendenhall 29, the mother of two small boys by a former marriage, died yesterday from bullet wounds allegedly inflicted by the estranged husband. She obtained a divorce a week ago and had taken over management of a boarding house.

The child, James O'Dowd, son of Austin O'Dowd whom Mendenhall accused of alienating the affections of his wife, was the only witness to the shooting. James told police the man had shot his "Aunt Anna" during a struggle over a pistol. He said the woman was struck down twice and finally forced into a sitting posture in a chair where she was murdered.

Police said Mendenhall admitted the shooting but said it was accidental. The struggle, Mendenhall said, began when he threatened to kill O'Dowd, a tenant in his former wife's household.

Six Deaths Resulted In
Gale-Swept Georgian
Towns Yesterday

BULLETIN

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Engineers today believed they had checked danger of a levee break north of the city and that the general situation was so improved that damage from flood waters of the Savannah river would be confined to 100 blocks in the lower section toward which water from a levee break four miles below the town were backing up.

BULLETIN

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 2.—(UP)—Fears that 12 men on two barges which broke loose from the tug Bafshe, had gone down in the West Indian hurricane, grew today as the tug, in distress, radioed its position.

The Bafshe operator, Carroll Jones, reported the position of the tug as 23 miles west northwest of Seashore, Fla. The tug Raleigh Kerner out of Mobile was expected to reach the vessel by dusk, and tow it to port.

Jones said the barges had not been sighted since they went adrift in the storm.

BLOWING ITSELF OUT

Atlanta, Oct. 2.—(AP)—As the fury of the tropical gale blew itself out some where near the Virginia Capes today, six deaths were added to the seven it took at Nassau, Bahamas last week before it circled the Florida peninsula, turned inland near Pensacola and headed northeastward across Alabama and Georgia.

In addition, the storm's progress across northwestern Florida, southeastern Alabama and Central Georgia was marked by a trail of tangled communication lines, halted rail and roadway traffic, and in scattered localities, damaged homes and buildings.

A man was drowned near Panama City, Fla., as the wind whipped in from the Gulf of Mexico. A carpenter was killed at Albany, Ga., by the falling bricks of a cotton gin. A woman was electrocuted near Blackshear, Ga., by a fallen high voltage wire and a Negro was killed near Valdosta, Ga., when an electric wire was blown down upon him. Two Negroes were killed on a highway near Port St. Joe, Fla.

Excessive rainfall accompanied the gale as it moved northward across the southeast. Georgia rivers and streams were sent to near flood stages in many instances.

A half dozen southeastern Alabama towns were without power. Virtually all highway and rail traffic in eastern Georgia was at a standstill.

A check today showed little damage had been caused at Pensacola, Fla., where the wind apparently attained its highest velocity after leaving the Bahamas.

Shipping which for a week had been imperiled by the tropical hurricane today was back to normal.

Unknown, "Failure"

Ends Life With Gun

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Leaving a letter in which he called himself a failure and mentioned sweetheart and parents but expressed the wish that his identity remain unknown, a 22-year-old youth spent his last quarter to rent a pistol with which he killed himself at a Market Street shooting gallery yesterday.

The letter was signed "The Kid" and he stated he had no relatives in St. Louis. It said he came here about 18 months ago.

In his clothing was found a photograph of an attractive girl and an artificial daisy in an envelope. In the collar band of his shirt was the laundry mark "P. B. A." His shoes bore the name "Booth's, Milwaukee Wis." There were no other marks of identification.

National Guardsmen Are Ordered To Marion N.
C., After Battle

BULLETIN

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Two companies of National Guardsmen were ordered to East Marion where a riot occurred this morning at the Marion Manufacturing Company's cotton mill. Companies at Salisbury and North Wilkesboro were ordered to enroute for Marion as soon as possible.

Marion, N. C., Oct. 2.—(UP)—A clash between rival union factions and deputy sheriffs at the Marion Textile Mfg. Co. plant here today resulted in two deaths and injuries to 13 persons. Five of the injured are expected to die.

The trouble began at the 7 A. M. shift-hour, when night workers who had struck in protest against the rumored unwillingness of the company to settle a controversy, advanced against a day shift which was going to work.

A general gun battle developed near the plant, with the strikers spurred into action by the report that the company had refused to take back into its employ 100 men under a provisional agreement, effected several weeks ago.

Randall Hall and Sam Vickers were shot to death.

The injured:

Deputy P. M. Green, Deputy Ed Shannon and the following workers:

J. W. Roberts, Hollis John, Luther Bryson, John Wike, George McComb, George Jones, Ensley Ballard, Roan McMinish, Tilden Carver, Mrs. Addie Hollan, Miss Lucy Sparks, and W. N. Sparks, her father.

An appeal for troops was sent to Gov. O. Max Gardner by Sheriff Oscar Adkins and jail officials.

Both factions of workers were armed indicating that trouble had been brewing for several days.

The strikers who walked out of the plant at the 1 A. M. shift—were said to have opened fire on the day shift men. Sheriff Adkins and his force were subject to a crossfire in their efforts to quell the disturbance.

Hundreds Saw Start
Of Dance Marathon

Several thousand people crowded the Twin City pavilion last evening to witness the beginning of a dance marathon in which almost 50 contestants entered. The crowd was the largest that has ever been accommodated in the park and interested spectators visited the park throughout the day viewing with interest that arrangement of the pavilion for the event.

Rest rooms equipped with cots, where entrants may lay down for the few minutes rest period allotted to them, have been arranged for both the men and lady contestants. Warm food is also prepared and served to the dancers on the floor as they continue to step about, always in motion until the brief rest periods are announced. A dozen officers were required to handle the heavy traffic into the park last evening. Arrangements were being made today to handle other immense crowds by the opening of adjoining land for parking purposes.

No Objections Made
To North Side Work

The board of local improvements of the city council last evening adopted the resolution providing for the improvement west of Galena avenue on the north side of the river consisting of cement streets and sidewalks and a storm drainage system. There was no objection to the improvement. E. B. Raymond was named to act with Attorney John J. Armstrong, commissioner appointed by the board, and Mayor Frank D. Palmer to assess damages against property to be taken through condemnation proceedings and to levy the assessment on the improvement.

The city council granted the application of Barron & Carson to install a gasoline service station at their garage on Peoria avenue. The application of the L. & G. feed company to erect an electric sign was also granted.

Coroner's Jury Returns
Open Verdict in Morrisonite's Death

(Telegraph Special Service)

Sterling, Oct. 2.—A coroner's jury investigating the death of Herman Stralow, who passed away at the Sterling hospital at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, late yesterday returned an open verdict, finding that death was due to cerebral hemorrhage as the result of a blow on the head inflicted by his son Glenn. The testimony of the attending physician was to the effect that Stralow's chances for recovery were lessened because of his intoxicated condition. Members of the family of the dead man at noon today had declined to sign complaint against the son who struck the blow at the Stralow home late Saturday night, while defending his mother.

Stralow and his wife attended a party at the Herman Schrader home Saturday night, it developed. Stralow is said to have become intoxicated and Mrs. Stralow is claimed to have refused to accompany him home in their car because of his condition and walked home.

Saw Father With Gun.

Upon her arrival home, Stralow is alleged to have been waiting for her with a shot gun in his hand, and attempted to force her to go out and get in the car for a ride. While the argument was in progress, Glenn, their 16-year-old son, was awakened from his sleep and went down stairs to investigate. When he arrived on the scene he observed his father standing with the shot gun leveled at his mother, Glenn, according to the story told Sheriff J. W. Kelly, grabbed up a curtain roller and struck his father a blow over the head. Stralow dropped the gun and walked into the house according to the story of Mrs. Stralow and her son.

Sheriff Kelly and Deputy Harrison of Morrison were summoned to the Stralow home where they found him seated in a chair, his head resting on his arm. He accompanied the officers to the Whiteside county jail where he was placed in a cell, and apparently went to sleep, never regaining consciousness. A physician who was called to examine the man Sunday morning is said to have informed the sheriff that he was sleeping off the effects of a spree. Monday morning the physicians announced that he was suffering from a fractured skull or blood clot on the brain and he was removed to the Sterling hospital, where he passed away at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Preacher Asks $50,000
Damages From Mrs.
Minnie Kennedy

Seattle, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Details of an alleged "whirlwind courtship" involving the Rev. H. H. Clark, former Seattle minister, and Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy were due for an airing in court here today in Clark's $50,000 breach of promise suit against the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist.

Clark was called to the stand yesterday but his story remained unfinished when court recessed for the day. A judicial order excluded from the courtroom girls under 18 years of age during the taking of testimony.

The former Seattle minister testified that he first met Mrs. Kennedy in a Seattle motion picture theater and described some of their subsequent meetings in hotels and restaurants here. Clark charges that Mrs. Kennedy, under the alias of "Mrs. Klark," wooed him persistently, promised to marry him and agreed to build him a tabernacle here and equip a "Gospel Ship" for evangelistic work along the Pacific coast. He alleged the later refusal to keep her promises.

Clark broke down and sobbed when he described the mental reaction which he said he experienced when he found Mrs. Kennedy had "deceived" him.

Clark contended that he was so completely compromised by Mrs. Kennedy that he could "never take another wife." He also said in his complaint that her failure to marry him had wrecked his plans for religious work.

DEPORTATION OF
ALIEN CONVICTS
IN JOLIET PLAN

Thirty Will Face Such Proceedings After Completed Terms

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Thirty aliens serving sentence in the state penitentiary at Joliet for crimes involving moral turpitude will face deportation proceedings when they complete their terms, officials announced today.

Federal authorities, it was disclosed, have for some time been checking the records of prisoners at the penitentiary and recently obtained deportations warrants for 30 prisoners who came to this country since 1917 and who have twice been convicted of crimes. Records of 150 other aliens, who came here prior to 1917 and who can be deported for only one conviction, also are being checked.

Under the plan, passports will be obtained for deportable aliens before they complete their sentences so that they may not be released on bonds while awaiting passports.

At a meeting of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles yesterday, W. C. Jones, chairman, suggested that Gov. Emmerson be asked to grant pardons to aliens whose deportation is assured. Prisoners convicted for serious crimes, such as murders, Jones said, would be made to serve maximum sentences, but they threat always before them that should they gain their release from the penitentiary, they would be deported at once.

DELAY SHEARER EXAMINATION FOR THE TIME BEING

Continue Probe Alleged
Shipbuilders' Work
When Premier Goes

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—On the verge of an expected call for a new naval limitations conference, the Senate Shearer investigators today had clamped the brakes on their inquiry into what took place two years ago at the unsuccessful Geneva conference.

Meanwhile, the Senate itself, spurred by disclosures made in the Shearer inquiry and statements that efforts have been made to influence tariff legislation, has directed its Judiciary Committee, headed by Senator Norris of Nebraska, to conduct a general investigation of lobbying under the sweeping terms of the Caraway resolution. When it will begin remains to be decided.

With Premier Minister MacDonald nearing the American coast, the Shearer committee decided to postpone further work until he has concluded his visit to President Hoover, generally regarded as for the purpose of cementing more firmly the friendly conversations which have already taken place between London and Washington on the limitation of naval armaments.

Postpones Airing

This decision of the committee will postpone during MacDonald's sojourn an airing of a so-called British document received by the committee yesterday without being made public which purported to show the existence in this country of an extensive espionage system reporting to London.

Committee members are considering this document, which was handed to it by William B. Shearer, the $25,000 "observer" at Geneva, for the Navy Intelligence Bureau which Senator Allen, Republican Kansas, says disputes its authenticity. Other ramifications of the picture that has been drawn up for them by the various witnesses also are being sized up and it is the opinion of the committee that most of the leading actors must again take the witness chair.

Named Alleged Author

Shearer's story of getting the so-called secret British document and of turning it over to the Navy Department and to Senator Reed of Missouri during the Senate debate last February on the 15-cruiser bill, ended his two days of examination by the committee. He didn't know what Senator Reed, who has since retired, did with the paper, which was produced when Senator Allen asked about it.

Named Alleged Author

Shearer named Sir William Wiseman as the author of the British document and he described this man as "the chief British spy in America during the World War." He said Wiseman is now with Kuhn, Loeb & Company. Mr. Wiseman promptly telegraphed to Chairman Shortridge and said he understood the paper was an "absurd forgery." Wiseman, who was called and examined, Allen declared later this course would be pursued.

Determined to recall most of the shipbuilders who hired Shearer to go to Geneva, the committee wants to get answer, among other things, to his statement that he was "dropped" by them because Frank B. Kellogg, while Secretary of State, called the Bethlehem Steel Corporation officers "on the make."

It is also likely that Drew Pearson, newspaper reporter, will be re-examined. He told the committee that Shearer and some of the American naval experts at Geneva expressed hopes that the conference would succeed. Rear Admiral J. M. Reeves, U. S. N. one of those cynically that he expressed or "certained" such hope and Shearer, in his more blunt way, called Pearson "a liar."

The committee members also want an answer to Shearer's testimony that S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, insisted that his mission to Geneva be kept secret.

Mr. Maxwell during his short residence in Dixon made a large number of friends through his charming personality and his death brings sorrow to all who knew him.

YANKEE SEAMEN AND FASCISTS STAGED BATTLE

Several Sailors Hurt, One Blackshirt Dead in Genoa Riot

London, Oct. 2.—(UP)—O dispatch to the Daily Herald from the Italian frontier today said one Fascist was killed and several American seamen were injured in a violent clash that took place in Genoa between a band of a hundred Fascist and members of the crew of the United States steamer "President Van Buren."

Lloyd's announced today that it had no record of any steamer by the name of "President Van Boret," and indicated that the vessel in question was undoubtedly the "President Van Buren" which was at Alexandria last Wednesday and should have reached Genoa on Saturday.

The clash was said to have started in a quarrel between two Genoese sailors and two American seamen. A crowd of Fascist including Fascist militiamen came to the rescue of the Italians, and the Americans began firing to repel the attack of the blackshirts.

The Daily Herald correspondent said the Americans retired toward the vessel and the fighting continued until midnight. One of the Fascist was killed by a revolver shot and numerous others were injured, had to be taken to the hospital.

One of the American seamen, Stephen Edwin, was seriously injured in the head, the dispatch said. While the origin of the outbreak was not quite clear, the daily Herald correspondent said it was believed that trouble began when a report had spread that some anti-Fascists had concealed themselves on board the United States vessel and intended to escape from Italy.

Frisco Attorney To Study Dry Situation

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—As a patriotic duty of a private citizen, John L. McNab, San Francisco lawyer, has undertaken, at the request of President Hoover, the difficult task of formulating legislation to bring about better prohibition enforcement and relief of court congestion.

Mr. McNab has no official connection with the government, but was urged by Secretary Mellon, Attorney General Mitchell and Chairman Wickersham of the Law Enforcement Commission, as well as the President, to draft legislation for submission to Congress in December that would centralize prohibition enforcement under the Justice Department.

Although describing it as a "burden," he said he felt it was his patriotic duty because no one "who has caught the spirit of the President on his ardent desire to make this country a law abiding nation could, for a moment, hesitate to take up this task."

West Street was flooded with three feet of water at some places.

Coney Island also felt the tide's force. High waves swept up over the boardwalk there, damaging many concessions.

Three days of light but almost incessant rain had added to the troubles of the Coney season. Hundreds of cellars were reported flooded, storm sewers were choked and traffic delayed in flooded streets.

By tonight the storm area is expected to reach its nearest to New York, perhaps bringing a northeast gale of 60 miles an hour and heavy rain. A wind of 56 miles an hour was reported at Atlantic City today.

Storm warnings have been ordered as far north as Portland, Me.

CANADA CANNOT PROHIBIT RUM EXPORTS TO U. S.

Such Regulation Must Come From Parliament Says King

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 2.—(UP)—The last hope of the United States Government to obtain some sort of a regulation by Canada prohibiting export of liquor into that country rested today in parliament.

The Canadian government at present has no power to prohibit the export of liquor to any country in which importation is forbidden, the Department of Justice ruled.

In making this ruling public last night after the close of a Cabinet meeting, Premier King said:

"This means that any action for the prohibition of liquor export to countries where the importation is prohibited or restricted must be taken by parliament."

King did not indicate whether such legislation would be placed before the next session of parliament.

The original request for a liquor export ban came from the United States. It was understood, and was the subject of a conference here last summer between officials of the two governments.

Sampler Staging Comeback

Used Flour Sack Will Make A Nice One for the Little Girl.

Every little girl—and some of them not so little—is entitled to the experience of making a sampler, all by herself, just as her great-grandmother doubtless did.
Along with our renewed appreciation of the furnishings of our colonial ancestors, the old-time sampler is again very popular and appears on our walls. Now it is up to us to provide samplers for the interest and amusements of the generations ahead of us.
The sampler is worked in cross-stitch, one of the simplest and quickest of all embroidery stitches, in mercerized thread of various colors. The material should be cream colored and very durable. For this reason one of the most suitable materials is a used flour bag, which you may have on hand or can easily secure for a few cents from your own baker.
First rip the bag and remove the stamping. This is done in any of several ways. If you do not have your own tried and trusted method of doing this, try soaking the inked places in kerosene overnight and then wash with soap and warm water. While the flour bag material is easily dyed and takes a splendid fast color, it is best to use its natural creamy color for making samplers. The sampler can be any size you want, either 10 inches square or 10 by 12 inches or even 10 by 15 inches. This latter size is particularly suitable when the sampler is to be used under glass as a tray.

Various patterns can be used for the cross stitching. One kind can be bought which is transferred on the material in the proper colors for working. Or one can use canvas and copy any old time sampler. A person with artistic tendencies can, with the aid of checked paper, make up a pattern of her own, working in modern features, such as cars, aeroplanes, short skirts and the like, which would make the sampler a valuable record in time to come. Always include the name, date and age in cross stitch.
If not used as a tray, the sampler should be put in a simple wooden frame and hung on the bedroom wall.

Paris Style Changes Slow Fall Shopping

BY DIANA MERVIN
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)
Paris—(AP)—The general season of winter buying is being retarded here, it is generally conceded, because the timid many are hanging back to see the length of the skirts of the powerful few before placing their orders.
Couturiers who launched the radical change in skirt lengths and silhouette complain now that their usual clients are late in ordering because they're afraid of getting clothes that are too long, or too short, too conservative or too daring, all depending on the way they intend to dress.

"The wise woman," one important dressmaker says, "will pick a medium skirt length this first season."
He describes this autumn's styles as "transition" clothes, meaning fashions on which later ones are to be based.
Whether skirts eventually remain long or decrease in length, all depends on women's reaction to this season's offering, he thinks.
Not only skirts and waists have changed, according to this particular couturier, but bodies are to be much more fitted under the arms and around the waistline.
The bagging, loose fitting dress which hangs straight from armpits to hips is a thing of the past, in his opinion. The new tendency is toward securing corsets, the curve beginning under the arm.

She Hasn't Been Down-town for Six Weeks!

Don't you know lots of women whose houses are "keeping" them down to a never-ending routine? But we know of hundreds who have broken away from this never-ending routine by using one of our many helpful laundry services. Everything is washed clean in soft water and mild soap; dried in warm, fresh air; and returned just the way you like to have it. Instead of hours given to the wash you have new hours and new days to use as you wish. Phone us for some leisure hours.

NEW YORK-PARIS FASHIONS

RESORT fashions are a comfort to look at even to those of us who have to stay right where we are and make the best of it. Summer has to come again sometime, anyway, and the fashions of the Southern season are but a forecast of what we will be wearing next June or July.

One thing seems agreed, shoes for the coming mid-winter resort season, are to be gay and they ever have before. All sorts of fabrics and all sort of designs are being shown by the more exclusive shops. These shoes are beautifully made, of course; that is why they can be quite elaborate, almost giddy. Buckles, too, will be used on the opera models—buckles of many materials, everything from colored crystals to pyralis.

For morning wear, or with informal afternoon clothes, printed linens, sometimes combined with patent leather are shown. The evening slippers sketched are of crepe de chine and moire, both very important for either Northern or Southern wear.

Paris Notes

By K. DORSAY

PARIS—The Argentina bracelet—so-called because the original bangle was made for the famous Spanish dancer—is one of the newest Paris fashion crazes. Paris women are wearing it in the bright colors that the dancing favorite uses in her stage shawls, ruffled skirts and bright little side-combs—jade-greens, red coral and turquoise blue, combined with gold and silver.

Bright colored jewels of all types have had a big popularity since the opening of the Spanish ballet in Paris. There is a current fad, credited to the Paris success of the Spanish dancing girls, for wearing heavy bead necklaces and huge, cumbersome bracelets made of vividly colored semi-precious stones. Sometimes as many as three necklaces, in different colors, are worn at once. Paris finds this a successful summer fashion, especially when used with frocks in white or pale yellow.

One of the first Argentina bracelets, now copied in varied versions, is shown in the sketch. The joining of several rondel links make it will be served. The special feature of the meeting will be the addresses of Rev. and Mrs. John J. Arnold, returned missionaries from Africa. The public is urged to attend.

Bridge Party Was Enjoyable Affair

Miss Dorothy Lennon and Miss Mary Louise Downing delightfully entertained a company of friends at bridge on Monday evening. There were guests for four tables. Decorations in the autumn colorings, of bronze, red, green and orange were most attractive, flowers and favors and the menu in the delicious luncheon, served, all emphasizing these shades. Miss Elizabeth Hennessey was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge; Miss Helen Sullivan, second; and Miss Constance Wingert was awarded the cut prize.

Annual Luncheon Phidian Art Club At Hotel Dixon

Sixty members and guests of the Phidian Art Club attended the annual opening luncheon on Tuesday at the Hotel Dixon. Mrs. H. A. White, the president of the club, delighted the audience with an account of her recent trip in the southwest.

Her description of Carlsbad Caverns and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and the Painted Desert were most vivid and unusually interesting, interspersed with many amusing incidents along the trail.

DON'T GO TO BED EARLY.

A great deal too much has been said in praise of the old "early to bed and early to rise" slogan.

To be sure, it may well lead to health. And health, possibly, may sometimes lead to wealth. But wisdom—well, that's something else again.

There are two kinds of wisdom in this world. One is the kind that enables a man to go about his daily business, keeping out of trouble, earning a living and finding ways of laying aside a little bit of extra money now and then. The other kind doesn't bring such definite rewards. It is the serener wisdom that keeps a man from getting discouraged and downcast; the soothing knowledge that the world isn't such a bad place, after all, and that most of its pitfalls are affairs that men dig for themselves.

This is the kind of wisdom that leads to contentment and peace. And, odd enough, you can often gain it by staying up late at night.

This isn't written in support of night clubs, late parties and the like. There is precious little wisdom to be found in such activities. If you are going to get any real good out of keeping late hours, keep them alone; keep them alone, and get out of doors.

The mind works better around midnight. To be sure, there is sleepiness to contend with, at first; but after a little while this drops away, somehow, and one is able to think more clearly, to understand more easily, to find reasons for hope where none was visible before.

Then, if one picks his nights right, there is the moonlight. Moonlight, late at night, when all of the day's noises have gone away to bed, is queer stuff. Nothing looks as it does by daylight. Familiar houses are made to look like enchanted cottages. An ordinary row of trees looks mysterious and exciting. The commonest of streets, lying deserted in this strange whiteness, becomes enticing and picturesque with a haunting sort of beauty.

Now all of this is only another way of saying that things look prettier by moonlight than they do by sunlight. Everybody, very likely, knows that. But why do we take it for granted that it is the moonlight that is false?

Maybe we're mistaken. Maybe the unattractive colors that the familiar scene wears by daylight are simply disguises, put there to deceive us. Maybe it is the sunlight and not the moonlight that puts a wrong aspect on things.

Does this sound reasonable? After midnight, when the moonlight floods your back yard, it does. Then it seems quite likely that the enchantment of moonlight is genuine. Then it is easy to believe that we have misjudged our world, and that it is infinitely more beautiful, more mysterious and more enjoyable than we generally suspect.

Maybe this notion is all a mistake. But it's a good notion to entertain, just the same. And you'll never get it if you don't stay up late at night once in a while.

THE KNEES OF THE MALE.

The arbiters of men's fashions seem to have devised a number of radical innovations for the male's garb next summer.

It is written, we hear, that a new kind of pants is to make its appearance; a gaudy, Sybaritic affair, somewhat like a pair of basketball trunks, cut off six inches above the knee, which will leave a lengthy bit of leg exposed to the fresh air, the inclement August rains and the curious public gaze.

This, they say, will be much cooler and more comfortable than the present trousers. Very likely that is true. Yet we shudder at the idea, somehow.

For, if the horrid truth must be told, the average male knee is not pretty. It is usually knobby, somewhat hirsute, and altogether unprepossessing. Much as we like frankness and comfort, we feel that most men should, out of kindness to the great American public, keep their knees concealed.

An automobile is the first thing about most any city that strikes you nowadays.

Why go to the zoo to see elephants when you can hear them walking around in the flat just above?

The American girl is a picture quite frequently hand-painted.

The Chicago judge who said that a man who would hide behind a woman's skirts must be a worm was right as to dimensions anyway.

A Kansas City caddy sued a golfer for $50,000 for an eye injury. Golfers who have lost their balls on the course may find it hard to understand how a caddy's eyes could be worth $50,000.

A casual stroll across the street often results in a casualty.

THE TINY MILES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY JOCK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The next thing that poor Scouty knew, the lilybird that grabbed the shoe began to circle round and round. And, my, but he flew fast. 'Course Scouty trailed him for a while and they he shouted, with a smile. "Hey, just what are we playing and how long is this to last?"

"Ha, ha," the lilybird laughed loud. "It really makes me feel quite proud that I can fly away from you. I'm pretty good, I guess. For looks, of course, I'm sad, at best, but that's because of how I'm dressed. I'm rigged out like a lollypop. It's awful, I'll confess."

"Oh, shucks, your looks don't worry me," said Scouty. "Just come here and see how fast I'll grab hold of you and maybe spank you, too. You've boldly interfered with me and I'm as mad as I can be. What business have you, flying 'round with Clowny's shoe?"

Again the bird laughed loud and long, and then said, "So you think it's wrong for me to grab a shoe from the air and hold it in my bill? Well, finders keepers is a thought that you have surely heard. You ought to let me keep this little shoe. Oh, come now, please be still!"

By this time Scouty grew real mad. Said he, "For you it will be sad if once I get a hold of you. I'll break your tail in half. Then I will bite your candy back and give you one good solid smack. When I have done some things like this I guess you will not laugh."

Then came a chance, while Scouty raved. It was the real chance that he craved. The lilybird flew right up close and Scouty took a dive. The bird's tail was a long, slim stick and Scouty grabbed it mighty quick. They both began to tumble and the bird cried, "Sakes alive!"

(Scouty and the lilybird land in a stream in the next story.)

Daily Health Talk

By D. C. BRYANT, M. D.
Claremont, Cal.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

If parents could be taught to know that their mouth-breathing children are not only living in a ever present danger of many forms of infectious diseases but are also laying the foundation for the loss of their hearing, sooner or later and that the time to prevent such trouble occurring is early childhood a large percent of the deafness of human beings could be banished from the world.

Seventy-five per cent of the cases of middle ear diseases resulting in the loss of hearing are caused by diseases in the nose or throat extending to or through the eustachian tube into the middle ear. In the throat, an acute pharyngitis involving the tonsils is the most common trouble, extending as it often does into the nasopharynx reaching the mouth of the eustachian tube and interfering with the free passage of air into the middle ear. This creates a vacuum in the middle ear soon followed by congestion of the mucous membrane lining that cavity which is soon followed by an acute inflammation, otitis media, either suppurative or non-suppurative, depending on the presence or absence of pus germs. Fortunately the great majority of cases are non-suppurative, and soon the acute form runs its course without having done much damage. Repeated attacks, however, in time, leave a chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the pharynx, nasopharynx, eustachian tube and middle ear, ending in loss of hearing that unfits the subject for life's work.

Practically three fourths of these cases could and can have their hearing preserved or restored by proper care and treatment in childhood. The most essential part of this work must of necessity fall upon the parents and the family physician. The parents should know that the mouth-breathing child and the child with often repeated sore throat has trouble, that, if not attended to and properly treated, will in all probability lead to loss of hearing, to a degree that will seriously interfere with its life work. The family physician should be asked for advice as to what should be done. If after examining and recognizing the trouble he finds he is not prepared to treat such cases himself he will turn it over to some specialist whom he knows will do the best possible for the patient.

Early recognition and proper care and treatment of these cases will save fifty per cent or more of the deafness with which the human race is afflicted at the present time.

SUDBURY FOLKS HONORED DAWES THERE TUESDAY

Founder of the American Family of Dawes Came From That Town

Sudbury, Eng. Oct. 1.—(AP)—This ancient Suffolk town which 300 years ago made things so hot for a Puritan named Dawes that he fled to wildest America, turned out Tuesday—with flags, smiles and hearty hospitality to a descendant of that self-same Dawes.

The visitor was General Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to Great Britain. He and Mrs. Dawes arrived by motor car in the afternoon and were met by borough officials who escorted the Ambassador to the town hall where Mayor Fitzgerald presented him with the honorary freedom of the borough.

The mayor paid tribute to the "stiff-necked" citizens of Sudbury who early in the seventeenth century fled to a strange land rather than submit to religious persecution. That same stubborn, frank character, he said, was as necessary today in working out the Anglo-American move for world peace.

The crowd in the council chamber cheered as Ambassador Dawes signed the roll of Honorary Freeman and he was applauded again and again in his speech of acknowledgment.

General Dawes seemed to make a real hit with his audience when, referring to William Dawes, who left Sudbury in 1628 and founded the American Dawes line, he said:

Praised Ancestor.
"No one could have picked a better ancestor for an American family than a Puritan stone mason from Sudbury, a builder not a destroyer, a constructor not a critic, also a man who did not run with the crowd."

In order to make clear that Sudbury's welcome included the whole Dawes family a cushion made of silk hand woven in Sudbury was presented to Mrs. Dawes; later she was also presented with a miniature old English room with oak furniture made by a member of the town council.

After the ceremony at the town hall General Dawes and the aldermen proceeded to the town Guild hall where luncheon was served and the General made his formal address of the day.

The Ambassador complimented the community of Sudbury upon producing such pioneers as under the leadership of Governor Winthrop took a part in the "great Suffolk migration." In the initiative their daring, their sanity, their high character and I venture to say their accomplishments, both you who are citizens of Sudbury and England and I as an American can unite in just pride and satisfaction especially since now, three hundred years later, the two great English speaking peoples to which we belong are united in friendliness and mutual understanding.

How to Judge Pressing Service

If you want your personal appearance to work for you rather than against you, have your suits pressed regularly the Valetor way. Inspect your suit when it comes back from the presser. You'll know it has been pressed correctly if the answer to these 12 questions is "Yes!"

1. Are the shoulders of the coat well shaped; free from wrinkles?
2. Are the lapels pressed to "roll"—not creased?
3. Is the collar reshaped to fit the neck correctly?
4. Are both coat fronts shaped to the chest?
5. Are pockets free from sag; flaps pressed without leaving marks on the coat?
6. Does the coat back hang smoothly?
7. Are the sleeves free from wrinkles, with or without crease, as the wearer desires?
8. Is the lining well pressed; free from wrinkles?
9. Is bagginess at the knees removed; does a firm sharp crease run the length of the trouser-leg from mid-pocket to cuff?
10. Are trouser-tops pressed and wrinkles removed?
11. Are perspiration odors removed?
12. Is the cloth soft and lustrous; the nap raised?

HOOVER IS STILL LOOKING FOR MAN TO SUCCEED MABEL

Assistant Attorney
General's Post

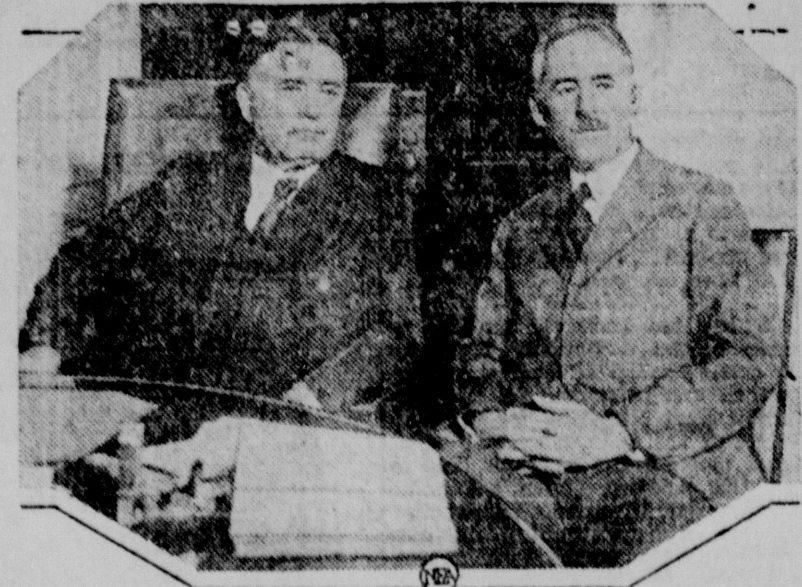

BY LAWRENCE SULLIVAN

United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington — (UP) — President Hoover's three-month search for a man to fill the shoes of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt as prohibition chief of the Department of Justice presents a major problem of the administration today.

Short handed under the temporary arrangement, the government's prosecutions in this field are accumulating faster than they can be handled by the new staff. A new term of the Supreme Court is virtually at hand with a calendar calling for arguments, briefs and answers, but the President still is undecided on the appointment of a new Assistant Attorney-General.

Although White House officials have never revealed a single name, nor confirmed one disclosed from

Borah and Stimson Talk It Over

other quarters about the Capital, it is known that at least ten men have been proposed for the important assignment. All of this list have been described as satisfactory to Attorney General Mitchell. When the President virtually had determined upon an appointment, he encountered political opposition from a member of the Senate. So vigorous was this Senatorial resistance that confirmation appeared doubtful.

Dry Leaders Insistent.

The Capital's wet and dry lobbies have further complicated the problem for the Chief Executive. Decisive power in major prohibition cases rests with the Justice Department's prosecutor. Dry leaders in and out of Congress have pressed for selection of at least "a conscientious enforcer" of the eighteenth amendment. The President is looking for "a big man." That is the only qualification which has percolated to political circles from the White House.

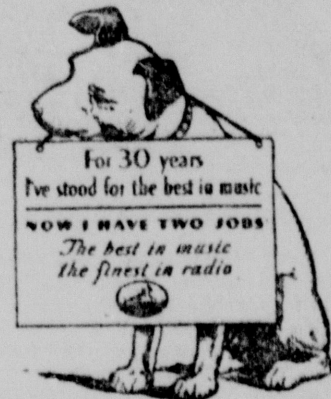

In addition to prohibition cases, the new assistant will have general supervision over federal prisons, narcotic smugglers, and revenue prosecutions. The $10,000,000 prison building program will be executed by the same officer.

President Hoover is importuned almost daily to name his man. He has determined, apparently, to avoid further complications in the legislative situation on Capitol Hill by withholding the nomination until the Farm Board is confirmed.

SERIES MAY BE ONE OF SPEEDY MEN IN THE BOX

Fast Ball Pitchers Seem To Have Call For Major Work

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The world's series of 1929 is perfectly arranged for an iron-man pitching performance with George Earnshaw of the Athletics or Pat Malone of the Cubs, picked as the leading candidates for the role.

These two fast-ball right-handers have thrived all season on plenty of work. They have finished stronger than any of their curving mates and the probability now is that they will face one another on the opening day at Wrigley Field next Tuesday. Malone, at least, seems a certainty, although Connie Mack would not hesitate to switch to Robert Moses Grove if the willowy southpaw manifested a sudden return to his mid-season form.

The schedule for the series is so arranged that it would be altogether possible for Malone or Earnshaw, assuming they are the first game selections, the twirl four games, still having three days of rest between each assignment. This, of course, would hinge on the series going the limit of seven games. Two days of traveling and the Sunday of rest in Philadelphia, give the pitchers more than the usual amount of time to recuperate.

Fast Ball Series

The one certain thing so far as the pitching is concerned is that it will be a fast-ball series. The "big three" of the A's, Earnshaw, Grove and Rube Walberg, all have tremendous speed. So have the main Cub trio—Malone, Guy Bush and Charley Root.

Otherwise, the vital factor of mound work, considered 60 per cent of any world's series battle, is largely speculation. When he is "right," there is no better pitcher in either league than Grove but the portside has been off-form since July. The Red Sox pounded him all over the park in his last appearance. It will be an especially heavy blow to the A's if Grove does not regain his form for the series. He is the ace of the staff and Mackin chances of victory are generally considered to depend on whether he is "right."

Stars Out of Form

Guy Bush was the Cub ace until around the middle of August but he hasn't lasted a full game since then until yesterday when he dropped. Close decision to the Reds. Walberg has been erratic; so has Root, although the latter pitched a 1-0 shut out this week. These stars may need the inspiration of a real battle to bring them back to form. There wasn't much to worry about while the Cubs were galloping to pennant victories by one-sided margins.

Any one of several lesser lights in the pitching casts may come through if the stars fade. The A's have old Jack Quinn and his spitter to rely on. Jack was pitching when Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander were rookies but he still has enough stuff to join those two stars in the world's series hall of fame. The Cubs have Hal Carlson, fourth-right hander of long experience, in reserve, along with Sheriff Blake and Artie Nehf, the old Giant southpaw ace. If it comes to an issue between relief men, Mack can rely on Rommel Shores and Elmske.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

Crowd psychology is one of the strangest factors in sport.

The razzberries from a boxing crowd are a part of the game. The vocal chorus from the bleachers at a ball game is an institution.

"So long as they pay their money at the gate, the fans are entitled to yell their heads off," a famous ball player said to me once. "I am never bothered by what the crowd does unless somebody happens to get a little too personal. All the razz otherwise rolls off me like so much water on a duck's back. The cheers are the same. The boys who are for you one day are against you the next."

The raucous cry of the disappointed gambler or the leather-lung is taken for granted in professional sport. It is only recently that the more fashionable games of polo, tennis and golf, attracting an ever-growing public interest, have had to contend with the element of crowd psychology and reaction.

Golf is among the last to feel a break in the barrier of etiquette and decorum. Golf crowds have been difficult to control but the hostility displayed by the galleries of Pebble Beach toward one of the finalists, Dr. Oscar Willing, was something new, something of a shock—all because more partisan onlookers disliked the doctor's unwillingness to concede short putts or his habit of standing nearby when an opponent was in trouble or a bunker.

The trend, however, seems clear. Forest Hills has seen the tennis galleries become more partisan at the game has drawn greater public interest. Apparently golfers now must find themselves for the same reason—for the jeers as well as the cheers.

"This business of needing silence or freedom from any disturbing factor in playing golf shots is largely a matter of habit," one of the contestants at Pebble Beach said. "Players at other sports have drilled themselves to ignore the crowds and so can golfers. It may never come to this point but we may as well be prepared some day to shoot while some partisans are yelling at us to "miss it" or "sock it into the bunker, you big stuff." Stranger things than that have happened.

When ten thousand people or more become sufficiently interested in golf to gallop all over a championship and perspiring for the sake of seeing the stars make their shots some play for the emotions may as well be expected. Even the polite traditions of the royal and ancient game cannot quite control outbursts of partisanship under such circumstances. The "razz" may not be sportsmanlike but it apparently has come to stay and develop in American sport, so long as the big ballyhoo keeps up.

GRIDIRON NEWS

WESTERN CONFERENCE BY WILLIAM A. WEEKS.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Northwestern University's varsity squad scored 83 points in a practice game against the freshmen Saturday, but one man, Captain Henry Anderson, of the team that did the greater share of the damage, is certain of starting against Butler and Cornell College Saturday.

Coach Dick Hanley has kept his linemen on the field after dark, for the past two days, using floodlights in an effort to whip together a satisfactory forward wall.

Activity at Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, which have tough battles set for Saturday, is plentiful and varied. The Hoosiers, who will celebrate Homecoming Day with Notre Dame as the attraction, are putting in an especially busy week. Coach Pat Page has not decided on a lineup and is worried about reserve material, especially for his line.

Polishing of the offense he will shoot against Colgate Saturday, occupied Glenn Thistlethwaite at Wisconsin. While the backfield appears to be developing well, the center of the line has not come along fast enough to suit Thistlethwaite and he has tried a half dozen combinations without locating one he thinks will do against the easterners.

Except for ends, Bob Zupke is about set on his lineup for the opener against Kansas. Arnie Wolgast has held down one wing ever since he became eligible last week, while the other flank has been occupied by several candidates. Ernie Useman, a sprinter from the freshmen track team of last spring, was used in the spot yesterday.

Michigan will receive little scrimmage in preparation for Michigan State. Coach Harry Kipke devoting much of the time to smoothing up the Wolverine offense. Ohio State, which meets Wittenberg in its opener will start to taper off tomorrow, as will Purdue which will tackle the Kansas Aggies under Bo McMillan.

Development of a passing attack is Burt Ingwersen's worry at Iowa, while candidates at Minnesota and Chicago, which will see action for the first time Saturday, still are being shifted about by Coaches Spears and Stagg, who have not definitely decided upon lineups.

ON EASTERN FIELDS

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Yale, Harvard and Princeton, the one-time "Big Three," still draw more than a little attention from eastern fans.

Especially is this true this year with Harvard playing two intercollegiate games in Michigan and Florida in addition to the Army, Dartmouth and Yale. Yale traveling south to meet Georgia, in addition to engaging Army, Dartmouth, Maryland, Princeton and Harvard; and Princeton battling Cornell, Navy, Chicago and Yale among others.

Consequently all three will be watched closely in their opening games this Saturday. Yale and Harvard probably will roll up imposing scores against Vermont and Bates, respectively, but Princeton expects Amherst to provide a little more opposition.

At this time the consensus is that Harvard is the strongest of the three.

Louisiana's Governor Stars as Baseball Player

If Connie Mack, Joe McCarthy or any other big league manager needs a good pitcher and a sure 300 hitter Governor Huey P. Long, 36-year-old chief executive of Louisiana, might fill the bill. The governor, who held some reputation as a ball player when a boy, says he can hit 300 "in any man's league." And he does with a team known as the Tin-Cans, made up of ex-ball players in New Orleans. He plays with them every Sunday. Above, Long is shown (at left) as he started towards first after dropping a bunt; at right, he seems to have a pretty good form on the mound.

Drastic experiments are being made in Yale's attack and Princeton, usually a slow starter, has not appeared to particular advantage. The Tigers, though, have a happy faculty for playing great football in November when it counts most.

The Big Three, along with Lafayette which opens against Muhlenberg Saturday, are starting their season a week after most of the east's teams.

Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Penn State, Syracuse, Georgetown, Rutgers, Boston College, Holy Cross, New York University, Carnegie Tech, Bucknell, Washington and Jefferson, Fordham and Villanova will be playing their second tune-up contest of the season with expectations of easy conquests. Army and Navy meet foes a bit stronger in Gettysburg and William and Mary, respectively.

There are few games on the Atlantic seaboard this week that have any element of contest about them. One of these will pit West Virginia, beaten by Davis & Elkins, against another small college but worthy foe in Duquesne, coached by Elmer Layden of Notre Dame fame.

On foreign fields Pittsburgh will clash with Duke at Durham, N. C.; Colgate will take on Wisconsin at Madison and Davis & Elkins will be matched with St. Louis in the Missouri city.

THE SCOREBOARD

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

With a cold rain along the Atlantic seaboard preventing the few eastern games scheduled in the major leagues Tuesday, baseball action was confined to Cincinnati where the Reds nosed out the champion Cubs by a score of 3 to 2.

The game furnished Rogers Hornsby an opportunity to collect three singles in four times at bat, lifting his batting average three points to .380.

This outburst carried him to seven straight hits against the Cincinnati pitching corps before Red Lucas stopped him in the eighth inning. The Rajah got four out of four on Sunday winning the game by 1 to 0 with his thirty-ninth homer. He still has a fine chance to oust Babe Herman of Brooklyn from second place in the National League batting derby, but only a phenomenal spurt could carry him past Frank O'Doul, the heir apparent to Hornsby's throne with a neat mark of .395. Herman is hitting .384.

Chicago outhit Cincinnati by seven safe drives to six, but Lucas so scattered the Bruin attack in every inning but the second that he was in a position to win when his mates touched Guy Bush for three runs in the eighth. Lucas himself led this assault with a single. Swanson followed with another one-bagger and little Hughie Critz cleaned up with a triple. Critz scored the winning marker a moment later when Charlie Grimm threw past the plate after fielding Walker's roller.

The Cubs got to Lucas for two runs in the second on a triple by Cuyler, singles by Stephenson and McMillan and Ford's error. It was Lucas' nineteenth victory for the seventh-place Reds and Bush's seventh defeat for the champions. Fewer than 500 fans paid to see the fun.

The Athletics will make another attempt today to close out their home season in a double header against Washington. The Giants likewise will attempt to run off their final Brooklyn game at the Polo Grounds. The A's have two more open dates on which they could dispose of their double bill, but this is the last change the Giants have to get in their twenty-second contest against the Robins.

MAUREEN ORCUTT THREAT TO MISS COLLETT'S REIGN

New Jersey Woman Played Sensational Golf in Tourney

BY PAUL R. MICHELSON

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Detroit, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Glenna Collett's path to a fourth National Women's golf championship was obstructed today by the possessor of one of the prettiest rounds ever carded in the royal and ancient game, Maureen Orcutt of White Beeches, N. J.

The two were paired against each other in the second 18 hole round of match play and the champion had anything but a picnic confronting her.

Miss Orcutt, whose skill has brought her the eastern championship several times in addition to others, dazzled the first round of competition yesterday when she halted the march of Helen Hicks, 18-year-old golfing marvel from Hewlett Long Island, N. Y., 3 and 2. She streaked around the first nine holes in 35 strokes, even more her par, and then clipped seven strokes from women's par and had six birdies and an eagle. The card was the best ever turned in during the national event.

Spectacular putting and pitching, her favorite shots, netted Miss Orcutt her brilliant card. On the 16 holes she was forced to play, she wielded her putter but 24 times or an average of three every two holes.

Two former champions, Mrs. Alexa

Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, Canada, and Mrs. Helen B. Stetson of Philadelphia, were missing in the second round. Mrs. Fraser, who has held the crown three times and who was the last of six Canadian invaders to drop out, was eliminated yesterday by a comparative unknown national tournament player, Anjeanette Hunter of Pittsburgh, two up. Mrs. Stetson was eliminated only after the longest struggle in the tourney's history, losing to Mrs. Leo Federman of New York on the 24th green.

Close matches were in prospect all the way down the upper and lower brackets today.

Miss Killilea Will Keep Milwaukee Team

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Milwaukee, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Miss Florence Killilea, dark-haired girl owner of the Milwaukee Brewers will keep her financial interest in the baseball club although it finished seventh in the American Association this season.

Florence, who jumped from the role of university co-ed to that of America's first feminine owner of an organized ball team, lost $60,000 the first season after the death of her father Harry J. Killilea, but she's not going to quit.

"I'll keep the club," she said in her slow determined drawl. "I'll keep it indefinitely."

"The club just had some bad breaks," said the girl, whose courage has won for her the respect of her team.

Florence isn't discouraged with baseball and she's planning to go south with the Brewers when they start spring training.

Plan to spend next Sunday at Lowell Park. Good bathing.

Mack Plays Hunches In Refusing Offers

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A report from Chicago that Connie Mack would not take the Athletics to Wrigley field for a practice workout before the opening of the World Series was not surprising news to those who profess to know something of his baseball methods. Mack is a psychologist and he is also known to play hunches. He may have other reasons for not wishing to introduce his team to the Cubs park until shortly before game time, but baseball experts who have been associated with him for years doubt it out in this fashion.

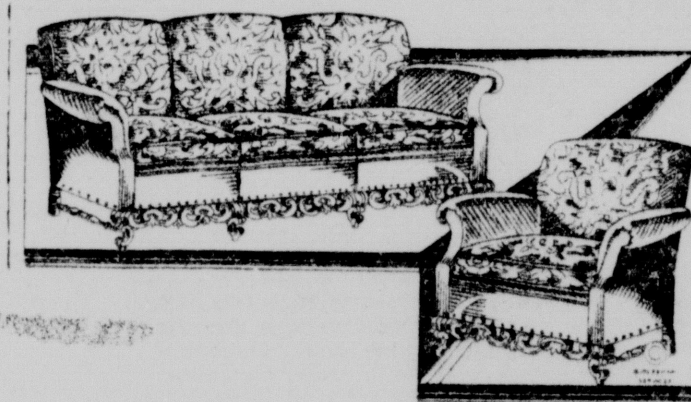

There is a large scoreboard at Wrigley Field, also there are seats in the outfield which are said to be in range of a right-hand batsman's vision, which may prove a mental or visual handicap to batsmen not accustomed to them.

Mack knows the conditions and according to dopesters, decided against practicing in a park devoid of packed seats and with its big scoreboard "dead." He wanted no practice swinging under conditions that would not obtained when the real battle started. Simmons, Fox, Cochrane all might find the range of an unoccupied field to their liking, then when they tried to hit into a field of moving faces and the rapid changes on a big scoreboard they might not be able to hit at all. At any rate when the A's take their first swings at pitched balls in Wrigley Field it will be with the stage set and all scenery, both moving and stationary, in place.

DISCIPLES HEARD PLEA FOR AID TO AGED MINISTERS

Provision of Reasonable Annuities Urged At State Meeting

Oak Park, Ill., Oct. 2 —(AP)— A plea that churches provide "reasonable annuities" for their aged pastors was made before the Disciples of Christ convention here today by William A. R. Warren, executive vice president of the pension fund Disciples of Christ, Indianapolis.

"Common decency," he said, "demands that churches provide reasonable annuities. Individual estates are not only impossible of accumulation, but unnecessary and would often prove harmful. But to build up by his own payments and those of his church a reasonable annuity for himself or his widow is not only possible but beneficial to his pastorate. With the natural anxiety for his family lifted from his heart a preacher is far more efficient in his leadership."

The plan of pensioning ministers he said, has already been started in the Disciples of Christ church. Ministers of the church have subscribed to the plan of paying in 2-1-2 per cent of their salaries to the fund. Work has been started in obtaining 8 per cent from pastors over the nation, and the third step will be collecting of a voluntary offering of $8,000,000 to insure the older pastors the minimum annual pension.

The average salary of the Disciples of Christ minister, Mr. Warren said is now $2,217 annually, as compared to the average salary of $2,210 for all other wage earners.

"To much emphasis cannot be laid," he said, "on the fact that ministers are not paid for their work as men in other callings are, but merely provided with a living in order that they may devote their time and strength to the work of the church."

How true this may be realized when we contrast the salary of the ablest minister in any particular state with the income of the most prominent lawyer, or the most successful banker, or the leader in manufacturing. There is no quarrel with this condition, or even with the fact that at the age when men who are successful in other callings are coming into their largest rewards, the minister's salary declines rapidly and then stops entirely. Preaching must always involve sacrifices for its vast but intangible returns."

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

LETTER FROM GERMANY

To the Dixon Evening Telegraph: Germany seems to be a quiet place to live in, yet there are enough happenings to break the monotony.

The last two Sundays quite a parade of uniformed men and women, led by a brass band, passed our home in Nowawes. They did not carry a red flag, as most of the Sunday parades do. They represented the sanitary commission of Germany, wearing the red cross on their arms. A goodly number of women nurses, dressed in white, marched in the procession. There was no disturbance, but crowds followed along on

Great Hole Sheared in Passenger Liner When Ships Collide in Fog

This striking picture shows the gaping holes torn on the starboard bow of the New York-bound Panama-Pacific liner Virginia when the passenger ship collided with a Norwegian freighter in a fog in San Francisco harbor. The Virginia was carrying 450 passengers at the time. Note how the steel plates were crushed in, as if papier-mache, showing members of the crew at work below decks.

the sidewalks. They marched to Potsdam, and spent the afternoon in Sans Souci Park.

The recent death of President Hindenburg's sister, in Potsdam, made quite a serious impression upon the German people. She was a maiden lady, in her seventy-eighth year, residing in her own home in Potsdam, for a score of more years. For some years, she had entertained a weekly Bible class in her home. The same was taught by Baron Von Starke, President of the White Cross Society in Germany. It was my pleasure to be invited by the Baron to attend a meeting of that class.

The hostess, Miss Hindenburg, was a tall, lady, gracious in her manners, and strikingly resembled the appearance and poise of her distinguished brother, Marshal Von Hindenburg. She died in a large hospital, in Potsdam, after undergoing a critical operation.

Many hundreds, like myself, stood for hours on the street, to see the funeral procession, but to our surprise it consisted of only two automobiles. In the first one was President Hindenburg, his son and members of the family, and in the second, were some public officials.

The funeral service was held that afternoon in the hospital, but the body was not taken away until next morning, when it was taken to the train and carried to the family burial ground at Neudick, in East Prussia.

Some More Dixon Friends Have Arrived in Berlin.

A postcard reached me from Nuremberg, Germany, informing me that Professor of Violin Music, Charles Lowry, wife and five-year-old daughter, lately from Ohio would arrive in Berlin, on the tenth of September and would stop at the Coburger Hotel. There is where I found them and after a pleasant visit, Charles, as I used to know him as a boy in Dixon, took us to a fine chicken dinner in the hotel dining room. Such a dinner is quite a treat in Germany, since fowls are quite expensive here. Before leaving, I made them promise to visit our home in Nowawes on the following Sunday afternoon. They fulfilled their promise, and we surely had a pleasant time, with an additional visitor, Mr. Fengler, president of the English League of the Y. M. C. A. of Berlin. Charley Lowry was a member of St. Paul's Sunday school and a member of my confirmation class when I was pastor of that church. He was acquainted with all the members of my family. My son Paul, a big stout fellow, used to carry little Charley on his back on the playgrounds.

They came across on a Canadian ship from Montreal to Liverpool. They passed through France, visited a number of the American cemeteries, but they missed the Argonne cemetery in which my son Paul is buried with fifteen thousand of his comrades.

They visited Geneva, Luzerne and Oberamergau, in Switzerland, and a number of the principal cities in Germany.

The mission of brother Lowry in Berlin is to take six months' training under the world renowned master of the violin, Professor Hess, of Charlottenburg. He expects to take two lessons per week, at the astounding price of sixty marks per lesson. They secured a lodging place of two well furnished rooms and a kitchen for two hundred and thirty marks per month. This large expenditure is ample evidence that Charley has the ambition of being a world-renowned master of the violin himself. We all wish him success. He has promised to give us an exhibition of his violin musical stunts in the Y. M. C. A. in Berlin, before he returns to America.

A Lively Discussion in the English League

Last evening, a Mr. O'Hara from Virginia, delivered a lecture before our League in Berlin. His subject was "The Negro Question in America." He delivered a tirade against Abraham Lincoln, and stirred up all the animosities of Civil War days. He spoke of the injustice of the North, for robbing the planters of the South of their slaves without offering any compensation. He spoke of the wretched condition of the slaves after the war, and that their condition has not much improved to this day. I tried to interrupt him a few times after there was given an opportunity for free discussion, but he was determined to hold the floor. I did not wish to break up the meeting in a row, so I kept quiet, simply declaring that I was in full sympathy with Abraham Lincoln and his purpose to free the slaves. There was present young men of various nationalities.

Among them was a dark-skinned, intelligent young man from India. He was a University graduate. He drew his sharp blade upon the speaker, and it looked for a while, that there might be need to call in the police. When the speaker exposed him views as an Evolutionist and asserting that man came from the monkey, and that Negroes were of the lowest species of the baboon, it raised such a sentiment of aversion, that the speaker completely lost his grip upon the audience. He went so far as to denounce all Missionary work among the Negroes in the jungles of Africa. They were happy in their nakedness, and why should we put clothes on them in that hot climate, and make them miserable, by putting on them the yoke of polite civilization?

There was also present an Englishman, who had spent some years in Africa as a Missionary. And it was but natural that he should take an active part in this discussion. He completely refuted the arguments of the speaker. It was the liveliest discussion that I ever witnessed in the English League. It is not likely that this speaker will care to meet the same audience again, and it is doubtful if the same audience would care to listen to the same speaker again.

In the main, these discussions every Monday evening, are both interesting and profitable. It gives us an opportunity to learn the views of different races, and residents of other continents.

The questions discussed, are either religious, political, or economical. I am booked to speak next Monday evening and my text will be, "Whom the Lord Loveth He Chasteneth." This applies to both individuals and nations. Our own beloved country suffered the loss of more than a million soldiers, to wipe out the curse of human slavery. In the American Magazine of October, Dr. Fiedick, of New York, has written an interesting and scathing article to young men entitled "What Do You Say to Yourself?" I shall make use of some of his excellent thoughts. Every thoughtful young man meets with difficulties and the question is, "How shall he overcome them?"

ANDRE HANGED AS SPY

On Oct. 2, 1780, John Andre, an English soldier in the American Revolution, was hanged as a spy.

During the negotiations between Sir Henry Clinton and General Arnold in 1780, for the betrayal into the hands of the British of West Point, Andre acted as the confidential agent of General Clinton.

To perfect plans for the plot, Andre, under the assumed name of John Anderson, met Arnold in secret and made the necessary arrangements.

During their interview aboard the British sloop-of-war Valer, the vessel was forced down the Hudson river by American gunfire and Andre, armed with a pass from Arnold and disguised as a civilian, started on horseback for New York, carrying concealed in his boots several incriminating papers in Arnold's handwriting.

Near Tarrytown, almost within sight of the British lines, he was captured by three Americans who found the documents and, refusing all bribes, handed their prisoner over to their superior officer.

A military court convicted Andre as a spy and he was hanged at Tappan, N. Y., Oct. 2.

CONFERENCE ON MISSIONS WILL BEGIN THIS EVE

Allentown, Pa., Preacher Will Be Speaker at Bethel Church

Dr. Edwin S. Woodring of Allentown, Pa., will deliver the address at the opening session of the Missionary Conference in Bethel Church tonight. The services will begin at 7:30 with a rousing song service in charge of Mr. Walter J. Bartz.

The conference will continue through with sessions at 9:30 A. M., 2 P. M. and 7:30 P. M. Miss Minnie Schulman, a converted Jewess and a representative of the Chicago Hebrew Mission, will tell of her conversion to Christianity during the afternoon session on Thursday.

It is anticipated that the conference will close with a great service on Thursday night when Rev. L. R. MountGomerie will bring the message. Mr. MountGomerie is an evangelist and general secretary of the Shantymen's Christian Association. This organization was founded 21 years ago as an interdenominational Faith Mission. Its work is among the more than a million men working in the Lumber Camps, Construction and Mining Camps of the United States and Canada. These men are far removed from churches and the only opportunity that many have to hear the Gospel is from the missionaries of the Shantymen's Christian Association. Thousands of pieces of sound Gospel literature and Bibles are distributed free each year. These missionaries go from camp to camp oftentimes walking from 20 to 30 miles through trackless forests in snow knee-deep, carrying loads of Gospel and tracts. Services are held in bunk houses where the men gather after the evening meal. Mr. MountGomerie will relate some of the interesting experiences of these workers as well as show the power of the Gospel among the men who come from all walks of life and are more or less under the influence of Bolshevism.

THE FIRST AUTHORIZED STORY OF THE LIFE OF THE COMMANDER OF THE ZEPPELINS

CHAPTER XIII

Among the men closest to Dr. Eckener there was grave doubt as to the wisdom of attempting the round-the-world flight which was so successfully completed by the Graf Zeppelin in the summer of this year.

The Atlantic ocean had been conquered. The Pacific leg would be long, but with good weather service such as the U. S. navy and the Japanese would supply, would not be difficult. The trip over the American continent would force the ship to climb to high altitudes, and it would be rough over the southern Rocky Mountains. But the trip over Siberia caused all to hesitate.

Those associated with Dr. Eckener came to him questioning. The road has been long, and many times dark and disappointing. The accomplishments of the Graf to date told the story of the life work of two men. Zeppelin, the inventor, and Eckener his disciple. After all the trials of the past, progress had been made. Wasn't the stake too great to risk on one great gesture?

"I have weighed the hazards," replied Dr. Eckener. "I have thought of all the things you mention. The trip will be made."

There was no appeal against this decision.

Among officers and men of the Graf, however, there was no hesitancy. Not one but was fully ready to go wherever Dr. Eckener led the way. The flight to Lakehurst from which point the start of the journey was to be made, was done without incident. Dr. Eckener wasted no time with social activities, had no time for receptions.

"No, no," he waved away such suggestions impatiently. "Later, maybe, but we have no time now. We are too busy."

And four days after his landing at Lakehurst, the ship was off again. This time for once he got the breaks of weather. He made his fastest trip across the ocean, completing the first leg of the journey in 55 hours. He passed his 61st birthday over the Atlantic ocean.

Siberia was next. It had been freely predicted that that Graf would follow the line of the Siberian railway. Then if he did get into trouble, he would find help at hand.

But Eckener was no halfhearted explorer. "The northern route is better and shorter," he said. "We may fly as far north as the Arctic ocean."

He smiled. For this man could still smile even with grim actualities ahead. "Perhaps my passengers would like to see the Arctic," he said. And presently he was off.

Weather service was available till he passed the longitude of Moscow. He had been invited to fly over the ancient Russian capital, but the weather was unfavorable and meant delay. He passed on.

Once over the Urals, Dr. Eckener knew he would have to fall back on his sailor's weather wisdom. He never left the bridge during those days and nights. One could sleep at Friedrichshafen. There was work to be done now. On he pressed over never-ending wastes and swamps and vast wooded areas. Forest fires burned beneath him unheeded by man.

Weather information almost entirely lacking, Dr. Eckener found another difficulty. His maps were more than unreliable. There were mountains where the maps showed no trace of them. Mountains that were charted climbed to heights far beyond those ascribed to them. Passes he expected to find were blocked by huge ranges. He had to fly at 6000 feet and in so doing sacrificed hydrogen gas which escaped from the cells in the lighter up atmosphere, thus cutting down his lift.

But the fates were with the Argonauts. Presently they were able to pick up the Japanese radio stations, to learn what was ahead. It was nothing pleasant. A typhoon sweeping down the Asiatic coast and across the Bay of Japan.

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women—who are dragging yourself around on your "nerve"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Mabel Wagoner, of 101 Norton Court, Akron, Ohio, says: "I was weak, irritable, nervous and suffered from indigestion and dizziness. Tanlac gave me new energy right to my finger tips. I gained 17 lbs. and now feel spry and active."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

As the Graf sails on, we will look inside the ship and have a view of what goes on in the handling of such a vessel.

The control car, built in snugly under the forward end, is clean trim, without a stick of unnecessary furniture. Windows extending around the entire arc of the front and down the two sides give excellent visibility. The control board glitters with gauges and instruments, gyro compass, indicators of ship's speed, of altitude, or equilibrium, of revolutions per minute of the five motors. There are toggles that send signals to each engine car—forward, reverse, full speed, half, and you wish to speak to the man back at the tail of the ship, three city blocks away, or to the deck officer or to the lookout on the top.

Charts and weather maps in the navigation table. You hear the distinctive noise behind that indicates the radio is at work. The motors are too far away to make any sound beyond a low murmur, but projecting outside the ship is a small propeller whirling merrily as the ship gathers speed. It is generating power for lights, the radio, and the ship's galley.

We may climb up a short ladder and emerge into the body of the ship itself. We are on the cat walk now, a narrow plank of plywood eight inches wide, that extends through the middle of the ship from nose to tail. Only a thin expanse of fabric is below.

But the Zeppelin crew, long used to working aloft, hurry along, carrying tools or supplies or equipment, as nimbly as the sea sailor on ship-board.

The members of the crew wear canvas shoes. Rubber soles might generate static electricity. Leather soles have nail that might strike a spark, at the second that air pressure outside was forcing hydrogen out through the valves. The men wear buttonless coveralls lest a button catch in a network, or rip a gas cell.

The control car below was brisk and light and business-like. But there is something eerie and awesome here in the ship's interior. There are lights enough only to see one's way. The great gas cells loom about like great drab elephants chained side by side in silvery stalls of duralumin. They sway a bit like elephants, too, with the motion of the ship.

It seems a long way back to the stern of the ship, where a bit of daylight is visible. The walk there seems to have narrowed to a thread. It leads up an incline, too, for it is half a ship above us.

Flanking the two sides of the cat walk are the fuel tanks, oil tanks, water ballast containers, spaced so as to keep the ship in trim. There are two curious looking devices overhead—exactly like the trussers of a very fat giant hung up on the line, inverted, to dry. These, too, contain water ballast. A lever in the control car will empty them on a second's notice, in emergency.

Flanking the sides again are little rooms, quarters for officers and crew. A long bench down one side, the back of which at night swings up, becomes an upper berth. There is a table, electric lights, a window. One may eat here, read while off duty, go to bed here when off duty.

There are sleeping quarters farther back, which are merely hammocks swung from one girder to its neighbor.

Here's a series of cross-bars forming a ladder up the side of an upright girder that seems to reach endlessly up. The space is enclosed, for this is also a ventilating shaft where any straw fumes or hydrogen may find immediate outlet.

You may climb the ladder if you like. It is as high as a 12-story building. But worth the effort, it leads to the lookout post, a chair riveted firmly to the ship's back, a table, a telephone, a glass wind shield in front. Here is the choice seat on the ship, if one knew it.

In future commercial vessels there will doubtless be small elevators leading to the top of the ship and an observation platform, inset into it. In the silence and warmth of a tropical night one may lean back and rest under the stars, touch hands with the universe.

Now a successful landing at Tokio.

Three days in Japan and then off for America. An accident to the docking rails dented a power car and caused a day's delay. But this was a detail.

Dr. Eckener had figured five days for the 6000-mile trip across the Pacific. Los Angeles awoke on the third day to find the Graf planning to arrive by midnight. The ship reached the coast near San Francisco before dark, made the last swing down California and reached the terminus by two o'clock in the morning.

Los Angeles was the only stop on his route where no hangar was available. The navy mast at San Diego had been set up temporarily at Mines Field as a hitching post for the Graf. Six hundred blue-jackets had been sent over to land the ship. Dr. Eckener circled about Los Angeles until dawn. Then he slowly descended, and was again on American soil after having crossed both oceans upon which the United States has its shores. He waved aside numerous plans for functions in his honor.

"We leave tonight," he said. Turning to Lieutenant T. G. W. Settle, loaned by Lakehurst as technical officer, he asked: "How soon can you have gas and fuel in?"

"We'll be ready by six," said the navy officer. "You came so fast you did not use up as much fuel as we had expected, so our task is simple."

"Good," snapped the commander. "We could have gone on to Lakehurst without refueling, but we will stop during the day. The weather is in our favor now. We will move with it."

Off again. Across the mountains and vast plains: Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, New York, and again in the hangar at Lakehurst. Around the world in 21 days, 7 hours and 34 seconds.

Received and congratulated by President Hoover, a formal welcome to New York with the traditional trip up the bay, a parade up lower Broadway in a storm of ticker-tape and fluttering paper, while thousands cheered and waved one of its typical greetings to a hero.

But the receptions and the honors were secondary matters to Dr. Eckener. A few hours' sleep after stepping from the control room of the Graf, and Dr. Eckener again emerged, not as the pilot and explorer, but the business man. Bankers to be interviewed. This must not be considered a "stunt" flight, but a demonstration to convince the world of the practicability of Zeppelin transportation.

Talk of projected regular lines between Europe and America, another line to cross the Pacific on regular schedule and yet another to run to South America. Laying of plans for the establishments of a German and American company, each one working independently of the other, but with inter-locking interests. Then earnest discussions of the necessity of establishment of a regular commercial airship port, and the building of more airships.

He impressed upon his associates the importance of erecting airship ports in localities where meteorological conditions are favorable in order to eliminate the obstacle so often interfering with regular service, namely, adverse winds preventing a take-off. More conferences, Bremen, Lehmann meantime having piloted the Graf back to Friedrichshafen, and then flying it back to Hamburg to join in Germany's triumphant reception to the "Master of the Skysways."

Stock Market Reverse Leaps To Death After

New York—(UP)—William J. Keyes, vice president of the Charles Freshman Company, Inc., died in an 11-story leap from a hotel window Tuesday.

Keyes, who was also vice president of the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation, left notes addressed to his mother and "dearest," saying he was in despair and that it was the easiest way out. It is understood that he lost $124,000 recently in stock market speculation.

He registered at the hotel as "William J. Keyes and wife" September 26, but hotel employees said they could not remember having seen Mrs. Keyes in the hotel.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Light is sown for righteousness, and gladness for the upright in heart.—Psalms 97:11.

True gladness does not always speak; joy, bred and born but in the tongue, is weak.—Richter.

Temporary Fences Save Time, Labor and Money

THEY cut labor costs by letting the stock do much of the harvesting. They turn into money much forage so often allowed to go to waste, enable you to rotate stock and hogs over different fields and maintain fertility. Live stock as well as hogs salvage much grain left in the field.

For instance—dividing either permanent or temporary pastures, hogging off part of your corn, turning in on legume crops—all these practices are profitable and all can be followed through using a few stretches of temporary fence here and there on the farm.

Temporary fences can be quickly erected on Red Top Steel Posts. With a Red Top Driver these drive easily through hardest soil at the rate of 200 to 300 a day. And after using them for temporary fences they can be withdrawn and used in your permanent fence line—makes your fence post dollar do double duty.

Come in and let us show you the advantages of the Red Top Post that make it the most dependable and economical post for you to use for all purposes.

SUCCESS OF AGGY STUDENTS THEME TEACHER'S TALK

Prof. J. N. Weiss Addressed Kiwanians at Their Tuesday Meeting

Members of the Dixon Kiwanis Club learned of the success of vocational agriculture student graduates of the local high school in an interesting talk given by Prof. John Weiss, director of that department of instruction, at their regular weekly meeting Tuesday afternoon. The speaker illustrated the rapid growth of vocational agriculture in Illinois by explaining that in 1913 there were but 15 departments active in the state where at the present time more than 500 are operating successfully.

The speaker explained that the course prepared the student to demonstrate his preferred enterprise by actual scientific methods. The project is first carefully outlined and prepared before actual work is undertaken. Records of the work, expense, amount of returns and detailed cost is carefully kept.

Proven Profitable
The state of Illinois receives from the federal government each year $189,000 which is used in carrying on vocational agriculture in the high schools. Records for last year show the Illinois students earned $278,000 as the result of their projects, almost double the amount expended in carrying on the instruction.

Prof. Weiss explained that less than 25 per cent of the vocational agriculture students enter college, demonstrating that the course prepares the student for the actual duties of life. He told the Kiwanians of the accomplishments of several of the students in this branch of study in the Dixon high school.

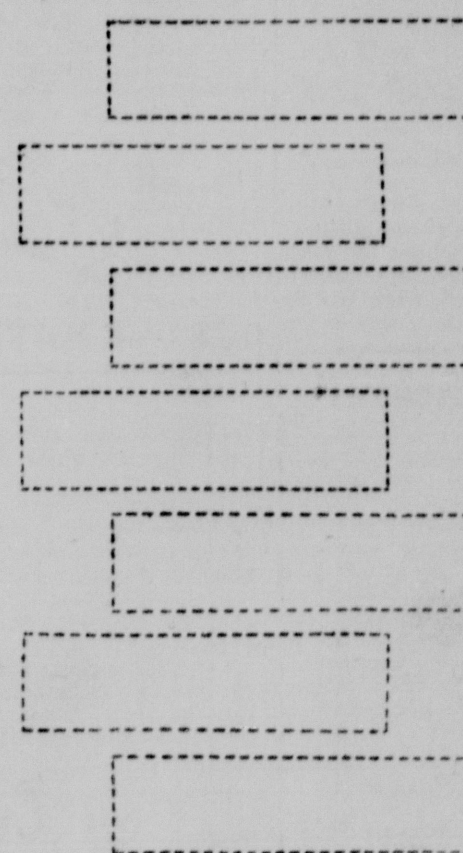

The speaker stated that the vocational course taught the technical side of agriculture and that a new branch had been introduced which instructed the student in rural community leadership. In this connection he stated that an oratorical contest would be conducted here next spring for agricultural students. The winner to be sent to the state meet, where a representative from Illinois would be selected for the national contest.

Bank "Robin Hood" Arraigned

THIS HAS HAPPENED

HELEN PAGE feels hopelessly in love with her handsome guardian, LEONARD BENT. A chance meeting with a dying beggar, CHARLES NELLIN, causes Brent to change his plans for Helen's future. Shortly afterward he tells the girl that in accordance with a promise given her parents, he is now to reveal her identity and that she is the only grandchild of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM.

Brent takes her to Cunningham and offers as proof a pocket containing a picture of Evangeline Cunningham which he had taken from the dying Nellin. Pending investigation, Helen remains with Cunningham who gives her a new car. She drives everywhere until she accidentally hits EVA ENNIS who has to be taken to the hospital. There Helen meets Eva's brother ROBERT, who falls in love with her, but she is devoted to Brent.

Cunningham accepts Helen as his granddaughter and comes to her; deeply, Brent becomes uneasy. After finding another pocket which matches the one he had used to establish Helen's identity, and plots to secure the girl for himself quickly.

Hearing the doctor say that a sudden shock would kill the old man, Brent gets the servants out of the way and rushes into the sick man's room wildly and tells him Helen has been killed. The plan worked and when the attendant returns he is dead. Then Brent appears as the friend and guardian of Helen and takes charge of arrangements. One painful duty is to break an affair with Eva without making Helen suspicious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

BRENT'S car was parked before the door at Bramblewood. Bob recognized it, and a strong feeling of repugnance brought a quick decision not to enter the house.

Eva saw it too, and her own heart went pit-a-pat with happy expectancy. She had not seen Brent—not alone—since the night of Mr. Cunningham's sudden death and she had found the situation very difficult to bear.

Perhaps tonight, she thought, they would be able to manage a little talk in private. Bob's presence might afford them the opportunity. His words shattered her hope immediately.

"Miss Nellin has company," he said. "Nothing doing, sis. You'd better come on home with me now."

"Oh, Bob, don't be so mean," Eva protested. "It's only Mr. Brent."

"I don't like him," Bob said coldly.

"But he's Helen's guardian—in a sense. Of course Mr. Greaves is really, but..."

"Never mind gabbling about it, honey. That's one hombre I have no use for."

"Then you'll just have to drive back for me," Eva flared.

"All right," Bob consented. "Call up when you're ready to come home."

But Eva had had a second thought. Leonard might drive her back if she said Bob was not coming for her.

"Never mind," she said. "I can take the bus if necessary."

"Well, be sure you don't accept a ride from that fellow Brent. If I ever caught him hanging around you..."

Eva was getting out of the car and did not answer him. She was glad that her face was turned so that he could not see the red that she felt flaming into it.

BOB drove away with a speed that accorded well with his perturbed mind. His pride, having won over his desire, was giving him no satisfaction. On the contrary he was as miserable as though he had dragged his spirit in the dust.

Eva ran up the steps and waited with impatience for Ashe to open the door.

"Mr. Brent is with Miss Nellin in the drawing room, miss," he said when Helen stepped into the hall.

Eva hesitated. It might be a business conference, she thought. "Tell Miss Nellin I am here, Ashe," she said and turned away to wait.

Helen sent for her at once. "Why so formal?" she smiled when Eva entered the great high-ceilinged room in which there was a fire burning to take off the chill of the late summer night.

Eva glanced at Brent. "I thought you might be talking over something privately," she said.

Brent nodded courteously but there was no welcome in his manner.

Eva went to sit beside Helen on the great divan before the fire. In her eyes there was a faint mist of tears.

"We were talking something over," Helen admitted, "but it isn't at all private. Leno wants me to leave Bramblewood and live in New York."

Eva's eyes sought Brent's. He did not look at her.

"But somehow I've grown to love this place," Helen went on. "I think I shall remodel it and live here always."

Brent impatiently crushed out the cigarette he had been smoking. "But I've taken an apartment for you," he expostulated.

Helen smiled at him, seized suddenly with a desire to tease. "But you aren't my guardian any more, Leno dear," she said.

"You may bring the housekeeper," Brent suggested, taking her remark seriously.

Helen laughed. "You've changed," she said. "Once upon a time you would have scoffed at convention."

Again Brent avoided meeting Eva's gaze. He wondered if she would guess that one reason he wanted Helen away from Bramblewood was to put an end to their friendship, if it were possible, and avoid these chance meetings.

Further discussion of the matter was unwise, he told himself. In a short while he took his departure. Helen went to the door with him and let him kiss her good night.

There was no thrill in it. Helen supposed it was because she was so unhappy over her grandfather's death. She missed him greatly. She had not known before his passing to what extent he had supplanted Brent as the only person in the world to whom she felt related.

But then, of course, she had tried to tell herself, she wasn't thinking of Leno as a guardian or a relative any more. He was to be her husband.

SHE hardly dared go beyond this thought, conscious that the ecstasy it once would have brought her had vanished. She was afraid to compare her present feelings with those that had swayed her a few months previously. Only by blindly accepting what seemed like fate could she prevent herself from feeling that she was inconsistent, fickle. For no longer did the thought of being Brent's bride seem sweet to her.

It was at a time when she was plunged deeply into doubt of herself that Bob came to pay the call his mother and sister insisted upon. Brent had just left her, after again vainly urging her to move to New York.

Helen had been desperately lonely when he left. "Why am I so obstinate?" she had cried to herself. "Why can't I do as Leno wants me to?"

Partly her thoughts referred to Brent's plea for an early marriage. "But I can't so soon after my grandfather's death," she had objected, and nothing Brent said had changed her decision.

She welcomed Eva and Bob with genuine warmth. Bob was surprised and pleased.

Eva thought she would pay him off for the difficulty she would have had in getting him there by suggesting a ride in his car. It would, she believed, embarrass him if Helen should consent to go.

Helen said she would enjoy it, and much to Eva's astonishment Bob seemed elated.

They piled in, the three of them, and soon Helen had forgotten the loneliness their coming had dispelled.

On the way back they passed near the Ennis house and Eva said she would like to go home.

No one objected and Bob lost no time in getting her there. Eva smiled to herself as she got out her key to unlock the door. The smile was very tender. Bob was the dearest brother in the world, she told herself.

It had hurt her incessantly to deceive him about Brent. "After he has sacrificed himself so much for me," had been her plaint. She felt now that she had given him a chance if his happiness lay in winning Helen.

And truly hopelessness was not uppermost in his mind tonight. Helen's presence beside him in his rattling little car made her millions seem remote—less a wall between them.

HELEN too seemed to forget that she was the Cunningham heiress. She forgot Brent and her promise to marry him. The big moon and the softness of the night fostered no regrets in her heart. She felt only the stirring of a love that was very slow-aborning.

The night she had rowed on the lake with Bob came back to her mind and she remembered that she had felt then much as she felt now. It had been very sweet—it was sweet now.

Why hadn't it gone on? The thought was idle, but she turned away from the answer.

Bob did not drive fast on the return to Bramblewood. He expected Helen to leave him when they reached her home—and he did not want to let her go.

How tangible she was there beside him! The dream-quality of the dinner table on the rose-bordered veranda was gone. He could feel her, without touch, and the thoughts her nearness engendered went to his head like wine.

He did not try to hold them back, believing they had no power except to make the world new to him. Later he saw that his indulgence of his fancies led him to what followed. Never was he sory.

Time and the wheels of his amusing car moved on in spite of him and all too soon landed him and his dreams at the Cunningham mansion.

"Do come in," Helen invited. "It isn't late." Neither of them had looked at a timepiece but she made the statement in good faith. It didn't seem late.

The housekeeper had waited up and the lift of her eyebrows when she saw Bob walk into the drawing room might have warned Helen that the hour was nearer witching than otherwise. But Helen was oblivious to small matters, being completely absorbed in enjoyment. Which had been, for her, such a rare sensation that it held tremendous importance.

"May we have some sandwiches and coffee?" she appealed to Mrs. Wethering.

That lady's answer was frosty. "There is no one in the kitchen," she said.

Meet the Vegetable Twins

All Katherine Jones needs is a twin sister to complete this picture—for she is holding in her arms a rare collection of vegetables, each being a twin in its class. First there are the twin egg plants, then the twin cabbages, cucumbers, corn, tomatoes, melons and the big twins at the bottom are pumpkins. They were on display at the 29th Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, Mo., recently.

Make
your heating system
a lifetime investment

YOU should buy a heating system only once. You may reasonably expect a lifetime of service from the modern Holland Vaporaire. There is nothing in its construction or principle of operation that will be obsolete in the years to come. Excess strength is built into every part of the Holland system. Original Hollands installed 20 years ago are still in use. Holland Vaporaire supplies the same type of moist, moving and humidified air that is used in modern schools, theatres, hospitals and public buildings. Your doctor will tell you that Holland Vaporaire is the right principle and that the majority of colds in the winter time come from the dry, stagnant air supplied by the ordinary heating system. In convenience, cleanliness and comfort Holland is unsurpassed. Holland burns any kind of fuel and saves between 10% and 30% of it. In buying a Holland you deal directly with the largest installers of home heating systems in the world. Comfort and complete satisfaction are guaranteed. Holland is the greatest dollar for dollar value on the market today costing much less per year of service than any other system you can buy. Prices are low and terms liberal. Let the factory-trained heating engineer give you the facts—there is no obligation—call the Holland Factory Branch today.

Freighter: Seize It

Milwaukee, Oct. 1.—(AP)—A huge lake freighter was impounded, 32 men were in custody and liquor valued at more than $30,000 was in the possession of federal agents, the aftermath to the most spectacular raid ever staged in Wisconsin.

Docking here from Windsor, Ont.,
the S. S. Utica of Buffalo, N. Y., was met by prohibition and Coast Guard forces. In virtually every part of the vessel whiskey, ale and wine was found and the belief was expressed that it would take another days search to unearth all the caches.

Capt. Robert Koch of Buffalo, the ship's master, and the crew of 31 men were arrested pending investigation. They were permitted to remain in their ship quarters for the night, under guard.

The raiders met no opposition from the crew. Other than denying knowledge of the presence of liquor on his ship, Capt. Koch had no comment to make.
